

NEW IRAQI DINAR MONEY

Due To Escalate In Value

There is a good chance that you have not heard about the New Iraqi Dinar Currency that was introduced in Iraq on October of 2003. The old currency had the picture of Saddam Hussein on it and had to be replaced with new currency. The people of Iraq were given a period of time in which to exchange their old currency for this new currency.

Historically, just one Iraqi Dinar has been worth over $2 in US currency. Under the regime of Saddam Hussein, the war in Kuwait, and the war in Iraq has had a devastating effect on their currency. Even though the value of the New Iraqi Dinar has doubled since it came out in 2003, it is still worth less than 1/5 of a cent in US Dollars!

In other words, back in 1990 before all that has happened, if you had 1 million dinar, you could exchange it for almost 3 million US dollars. Now, that same 1 million dinar is only worth a little under $2000 US dollars!

The new currency was printed by one of the top printers of banknotes in the world, the De La Rue Company based in the UK. The new currency is loaded with security features like color-changing inks, watermarks, imbedded strip similar to our money, and secret marks that show up only under ultra-violet light. The new currency is also engraved which distinguishes it from any other type of printing. Dinar is pronounced dee-nar.

Iraq is number 2 in oil reserves in the world. Some think it is number one with oil fields not even discovered yet. The oil is near the surface and very easy to get to, and is of a high quality, so it is very inexpensive to get it out of the ground. The dinar was worth almost $3 per dinar back when oil was selling for only about $15 dollars a barrel. Now it is 5 times more valuable.

Presidential Order number 13303 gives all Americans the opportunity to invest in Iraq, and is actually encouraged in order help to restore the economy and get the country back on its feet.

Many people from the US and other countries of the world are buying the dinar and holding it expecting it to again increase in value to $2 to $3 US. At this time, the dinar is not yet on the international exchange but rumor has it that it should hit the market sometime in 2013.

Violence is way down. Oil is pumping again. The Iraqi stock market is up and running. Our troops are off the streets and elections were held in March 2010. The Government is more stable now, which looks good for the Dinar to hit the world market soon.

In case you have heard that the New Iraqi Dinar was some sort of a scam, it was recently featured on CNBC television on the "Cramer" show. Cramer is a stock market guru who can be seen on CNBC daily. He recommended that every American that can afford to buy should buy some dinar! Just that show has created a buying surge here in the USA.

This very well could be an opportunity of a lifetime for many people. Where else could you possibly make 10 to 1,000 times your investment on anything? If the Iraqi Dinar increases only by 10 cents a 25,000 Dinar note would be value of $2,500 in US currency. If the Dinar increased to $2.00 per Dinar, a 25,000 Dinar note would be worth $50,000 US currency.
